Course Description and Objectives: Why do states go to war with one another, and how has the nature of war changed over time, particularly since the beginning of the “war on terror?” Why do states remove barriers to trade with one another? How have the human rights and environmental movements influenced global politics? This class will address these kinds of questions both theoretically and through in-depth study of issues including the war on terror, the international market for sushi, and the global movement in support of human rights for women. This class aims to deepen your understanding of international politics, as well as to strengthen your ability to evaluate contemporary issues relating to international politics and to talk and write about those issues in an informed and coherent manner.

Expectations and Course Policies:

1. Prepare for each class by carefully reading the assigned materials, and bring the day’s assigned reading to class with you (if you read it on a laptop computer, than bring your computer).
2. Regularly (at least once before each class – so three times per week) read a newspaper with strong international coverage, focusing on the articles about international politics (the New York Times, the Wall Street Journal, and the Times of London, are all good choices).
3. Attendance Policy: Come to class on time, and stay for the duration. I take attendance, and I will notice if you miss class. If you miss a class where an in-class activity or pop quiz was administered, you will receive a grade of zero unless you produce documentation from campus life indicating that the absence was excused. If you leave early on a day when you submitted work (without prior approval) you will receive a grade of zero on that work.
4. Texas Christian University complies with the Americans with Disabilities Act and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 regarding students with disabilities. Eligible students seeking accommodations should contact the Coordinator of Services for Students with Disabilities in the Center for Academic Services located in Sadler Hall, 11. Accommodations are not retroactive, therefore, students should contact the Coordinator as soon as possible in the term for which they are seeking accommodations. Further information can be obtained from the Center for Academic Services, TCU Box 297710, Fort Worth, TX 76129, or at (817) 257-7486.
5. Academic Misconduct (See Section 3.4 from the Student Handbook) – I expect that the work that you turn in will be your own. Any act that violates the academic integrity of the institution is considered academic misconduct, and I will not hesitate to bring suspected academic misconduct to the proper authorities.

Grading: Grades in this course will be determined as follows:

Reading Quizzes (at least 8) and other in-class exercises: 25%
First Paper (Due February 15 at the beginning of class): 15%
Second Paper (Due March 29 at the beginning of class): 15%
Final Paper (Due May 5, 10:30 am): 30%
Paper about in-class debate: 15%

Grades are determined on a 100-point scale as follows:

A: 93.5 and above	B: 82.5-86.4	C: 72.5-76.4	D: 62.5-66.4
A-: 89.5-93.4	B-: 79.5-82.4	C-: 69.5-72.4	D-: 59.5-62.4
B+: 86.5-89.4	C+: 76.5-79.4	D+: 66.5-69.4	F: 59.4 and below

I will use the +/- system for all students, and the TCU registrar will automatically convert the grades of students not under the +/- system to the old system.

Paper deadline extensions will not be allowed except in the cases of university-excused absences or illnesses, and proper documentation is required.

If you feel that you have been graded unfairly on any course assignment, please wait 24 hours after the assignment is returned and then contact me with a typed statement about why you believe you were graded unfairly. This statement must provide substantive reasons why you believe that you were graded unfairly. The appeal process must be started one week after the exam/homework was returned.

Assignments are due at the beginning of class. I am strict about enforcing this rule. Late assignments will be penalized 10 points (out of 100) per date late. Once grades have been officially submitted for the course, late assignments will no longer be accepted.

Quizzes: We will have at least eight quizzes in this class. The quizzes will mostly cover assigned readings, but might also touch on current events related to international politics and/or materials that we have covered in class. If you do the readings, follow current events, and pay attention in class, your quiz grade should end up being quite high. Quizzes will usually take place at the beginning of class, and no extra time will be granted to students arriving late.

Papers: There will be four papers assigned in this class. One of these papers will be a reflection paper about an in-class debate. Each student will be required to participate in an in-class debate (topics and dates will be assigned later in the semester). One week after your in-class debate, you will be required to turn in a reflection paper about your experiences preparing for and participating in the debate. If you miss the debate, you will not be permitted to turn in a reflection paper (unless your absence is excused by campus life). The assignment will be distributed at the same time that the first debate topics are distributed.

For the other three papers, you will be required to analyze issues that we have covered in class. I will expect you to give these issues some thought on your own, rather than simply reproducing what we have covered in class. More specific assignments will be distributed later in the semester.

If you would prefer, you have the option to write a research paper instead of writing these three analysis papers. You are also permitted to revise and lengthen a research paper that you have written for another class. If you are interested in writing or revising and expanding a research paper, you are required to see me during the first two weeks of class to discuss possible topics. If I don't hear from you by January 27, you will be required to write the three analysis papers (i.e. you are not permitted to decide that you are writing a research paper only after you have failed to get your first analysis paper in on time).

Office Hours: I encourage students to take advantage of my office hours in order to ask questions about course materials or to chat about issues related to the course or political science more generally. Also, if you have any comments about or problems with the course itself I encourage you to share them in my office hours.

If you would like to get in touch with me to ask a question or schedule an appointment, I encourage you to e-mail me.

Course Materials: The following books are required. They are available at the TCU bookstore, but feel free to buy copies at other bookstores or online. Readings that aren't in these books will be available online, through the course's ecollege site (log in to tcuglobal.edu, go to the "Doc Sharing" section, and then view "Assigned Readings"):
